LAW ENFORCEMENT

Prohibition Question Now
Expected to Be Cast
Into Campaign

Washington, Oct. 16.—The conference of state governors which President Coolidge has called to meet at the White House this week end has been lifted out of the ruck of commonplace things and elevated to a point where it now bids fair to become the most outstanding political event of the current season—with an important bearing on next year's presidential campaign.

Governor Gifford Pinchot's outspoken challenge to President Coolidge to take personal command of prohibition enforcement and the quick rebuke administered to the Pennsylvania governor by such a prominent Republican as Henry J. Allen of Kansas, made this certain today.

Instead of being a quiet week-end, partisan party at the White House, featuring lofty platitudes about the beauties of law enforcement and the sacredness of the constitution, the meeting now promises to vie some clashing and fireworks that will make political history.

President Coolidge does not intend, his friends said, today, to accept in "meekness and humility" the criticism of his administration voiced by Governor Pinchot. He plans to reply vigorously to Mr. Pinchot, and serve notice not only to Pennsylvania but to others as well that enforcement of laws in this country is as much up to state and local authorities as it is to the federal government.

The president already is working on his speech. He talked it over with some of his cabinet members today, and the cabinet itself devoted some discussion to the approaching conference.

Washington, Oct. 16.—There was an air of resentment at the white house over the effort of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania to hold President Coolidge responsible for alleged dry law laxity.

Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas, a white house luncheon guest, said that Pinchot was trying to make the president do what it had been unable to do in Philadelphia. He added: "If I were governor and a city defied my orders to close up saloons, they would wake up to the sound of reveille and retire to the tune of taps."

The president let it be known that there would be no departure from his plan to ask for state co-operation instead of taking up the burden of enforcement personally. When he received the delegates to the citizenship convention he told them that he had called a conference of governors for Oct. 20 to deal with the situation they are discussing.

Former Governor Allen scored Pinchot for what he termed "passing the buck" to President Coolidge in the matter of dry law enforcement. The address was made before the conference on citizenship council of Christ churches.

"There is some confusion of thought as to whose duty it is to enforce the dry law," Allen declared. "There is a little touch of that game we learned so well during the war of passing the buck. For the most part, however, the earnest minded men and women who have come here with their anxieties for the law heavy upon their hearts are confused as to whether it is the duty of the federal government or the state to enforce the law."

"I believe that responsibility so far as the government is concerned should be taken out of the treasury department, or prohibition bureau, and placed with the department of Justice."

"I believe in spite of what has been said that the prohibition people should keep in mind the fact it is the duty of the police powers in the respective states to enforce prohibition within those states. Good government must begin at home. Federal power should be the last recourse of bad government in a bad community."

In reference to the situation in Pennsylvania, cited by Governor Pinchot in calling upon President Coolidge to personally direct a dry drive, he declared that Pinchot should first exhaust every power at his command before calling on the United States.

ROCKING CHAIR IS CAUSE OF DEATH

Canton, O., Oct. 16.—Clarence W. Bechtel, 25 is dead here today as the result of a quarrel over a rocking chair which he gave Mrs. Anna R. Breckler, 48, as a Christmas gift last year.

Bechtel, according to police, came home last night and engaged in a quarrel with his landlady, when Mrs. Breckler is alleged to have ordered him from her home. As he was leaving, he is said to have made some nasty remarks regarding her ingratitudo and Mrs. Breckler pursued him with a gun.

They came to grips on the porch. Three shots were fired from the gun one entering Bechtel's body just below the heart, one passing through the woman's hand and the third went wild. Bechtel died on the way to the hospital. Mrs. Breckler is under arrest charged with murder.

RIVAL MANAGERS ISSUE STATEMENTS

New York, Oct. 16.—Miller Huggins, manager of the world champion New York Yankees, said: "The Giants had some tough breaks in the eighth inning, I know, but in the pinch my boys came through wonderfully, just as I expected them to do. Wally Schang and Everett Scott started it, and Bob Meusel finished it. The Giants are still one up on us and I hope we even it up next year. It was a great series. I think the greatest that ever was played. I knew my team would come through. I'm proud of them all."

John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, world champions in 1905, 1921 and 1922, made the following statement: "I have no alibis. We beat them twice, in 1921 and 1922. Maybe they were entitled to win. I congratulate them and I hope we will meet again next year. It will be a different story if we do. I want to say one thing to clear up something. Babe Ruth walked eight times during the series, more than any other man, it is true, but not once did I order any pitcher of mine to pass him. But he's a dangerous hitter. There's no getting away from that."

SIDNEY THATCHER

Lloyd George has been commended as being more nearly American than any European political figure. The former British premier demonstrated this at close range Sunday, when he rebelled against church attendance when he had planned a morning of golf.

"The only part that most people ever had in their nation is that by loving it they helped make a national spirit. This that they loved was not an abstraction, a theory of government. It was a person. It was a king, or some one in his family. If he were human and friendly, they loved him.

We watched an old woman this summer look at the picture of President Harding. She was not born here. She was of a time and of a country where the rulers were to be respected and honored and loved. That had been her only part in the government. But she came over here and she was lost. It was not the thing to do here. The first thing she learned was that the ruler is not one to be loved; that is her servant to be so treated as considered. He was to be opposed as heckled and talked about critically by every good citizen. But now that the ruler was dead, people were doing something that she could have a part in; they were bringing out the things of human interest about him which she could understand."—Rev. John Malick, First Unitarian Congregational Church Cincinnati.

The heavy eater is unquestionably less efficient mentally than the man who eats just enough to maintain a minimum body weight and supply the energy for his physical activities. More particularly the effect of overeating upon brain efficiency can be observed immediately after the eating of a heavy meal. In addition to the more general effects of overeating we have here the specific effect of the withdrawal of the blood supply from the brain to the digestive organs; the result is a lazy or sleepy feeling.

So important is this effect of the heavy meal upon the mental efficiency that it is generally recognized by the efficiency experts who deal with high grade mental workers. One such efficiency engineer, in handling a large force of buyers for a firm in New York, laid down as a first rule that they should not have lunch before one o'clock; a second rule was that they should not do important business at all on a full stomach. In this manner he circumvented the practice of salesmen who were in the habit of taking his buyers out to lunch, giving them a good feed and then, over coffee and cigars, while they were in good humor—in other words, robbed of their mental alertness—putting across a good deal for the salesmen, but a poor deal for the buyer's house.

The digestion of food itself consumes energy, as it increases the total activities of the body as measured by the amount of oxygen consumed, but these increased activities, unlike those of exercise, seem to deaden rather than to stimulate mental activity.

The probable best results in mental as well as physical efficiency would be a happy medium of nutrition between the over-eating habits of the average man, and the half rations of wartime experimenters.

While there is probably no need, in ordinary life, of these extreme dietary restrictions, yet unquestionably light eating habits are essential for those who wish to prolong their lives and do superior mental work. It is equally important for the mental worker to arrange the proportioning of his meals so that his chief labors of the day will not come during those hours when he is digesting his chief food supply for the day.

No appreciable amount of bulkier food substances such as ordinary proteins, carbohydrates and fats are concerned in brain activity. The brain wastes the slowest of any organ or tissue (with the exception of the bones) during fasting or starvation.

THE PUBLIC MIND.

The prosperity of Our Country and the success and value of all business industries and enterprises depend largely on the attitude of the public.

"The public mind," is made up in the aggregate of every shade of thought from placid conservatism to the rankest forms of ultra-socialism preached on the street corners.

Any one who will make a trip across the continent or travel from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico must become an optimist and gain increased faith in the integrity and fair mindedness of the people at large.

The magnitude and variety of business interests and all forms of production, from agriculture and lumbering to manufacturing, banking, public utilities and transportation, mining and shipping working in open private competition and yet under control of government, are a revelation of genius to make an intelligent person proud and patriotic.

It must not be forgotten that back of all this great manifestation of power, intelligence, harmony and stability is the "public mind," the consciousness of the commonwealth founded on well-informed, clear-thinking citizenship, that is not easily led astray by vicious leaders or confused sophistries. The public mind is the greatest national asset.

THE WORLD OUR NEIGHBORHOOD.

The world is not getting worse, it's getting smaller. Our fathers never heard of the doings going on today for the simple reason that they seldom heard of happenings beyond their country. To be true, the newspapers are filled with things that a former generation never thought of. The reason is obvious; means of communication abound today that were unknown a few generations ago. The wires of the great dailies gather the events of two continents and place these before us as casually as the morning coffee.

The disquieting wave of wickedness and catastrophe is nothing more than a widening of our neighborhood. Warring armies fought each other at New Orleans a century ago, although two weeks before, peace had been declared. Today New Orleans and Sidney, Australia, are on the same wave length, so to speak. A President's death in San Francisco is known to New Yorkers simultaneously.

So the mind of the news reader shifts with his eye from events in Los Angeles to Denver, to Portland, to Miami in less time than it takes to tell it. Europe, Asia, Africa and the antipodes are as near in the news as our suburbs.

When this worldwide territory of the news-gathering agencies is considered, the instances of bad news are actually few. If the world, with its teeming millions is our neighborhood today, it is not such a bad world after all. Remember, the best news of all is seldom, if ever reported.

Today's Talk

WHEN THE LEAVES ARE OFF THE TREES looks upon stripped trees and see there the gold of our desires, the basic truths of our natures, the standards on which we have tried to build.

Stately and beautiful as the trees are with their coverings of green, and mystic as the flutterings and whisperings of their leaves, still there is a grandeur and nobleness about their bare, reaching limbs that causes the very soul to weep.

There is a feeling of reverence that comes over one as these servants of nature stand their life rooted into the very heart of the earth.

We all arrive at a time in our lives when the trappings and the coverings, the decorations and the ornaments take second place to the sound worth and fundamentals of character itself.

The world is able to look into our bare thoughts and actions as if the health and vigor of the tree is not always expressed by its beautiful foliage, but by the soundness of its trunk.

Let us always be glad to stand for what we are, with no apologies.

Important as are clothes to appearance, they are mere coverings after all. It's the heart and the head and the bearing of the man in all events that counts.

When the leaves are off the tree, we think of all that that tree has given of itself during the months of sunshine and warmth.

And if we are to judge people we must catch their spirit, not judge their covering, though it may be very attractive, expensive and of the latest style.

The world is able to look into our bare thoughts and actions as if Twenty: "I can afford only a few new clothes this Winter. What would you advise me to get? I have a good heavy coat. I want to look stylish.

Answer: A famous designer of clothing has said: "A fur neckpiece, a string of beads and silk stockings are the secret of a stylish appearance." And I believe he's right! Everybody is now wearing a knife-pleated skirt and a jacquard blouse. My favorite combination is a dark blue wool-crepe skirt with a blue silk-crepe overblouse which has a touch of dark red or green in it—perhaps shot with a fine gold thread.

O. W.: "Is it good form to have layer cake for breakfast? When, if ever, is it permissible to use paper napkins for home dinners? Of what benefit is charcoal to cistern water when kept in the water continually? Kindly give information about the edible artichoke and the way to cook it."

Answer: No, it is not good form to have layer cake at breakfast. Paper napkins are convenient to use for picnics or at a time of upheaval in the home—such as when moving, when housecleaning or when there is illness. But people do not often use them regularly even for home meals. Japanese crepe napkins (blue and white) are used by many housewives because they are the easiest to launder—simply requiring washing, and no ironing.

At the cistern charcoal, the most approved method today is the following: To keep rain water in good condition, first have a cut-off in the pipe so that the first fall of rain, for about half an hour, may be prevented from going into the cistern and carrying with it the dust from the roof; after the half hour, open the passageway so that the rain may go from the roof into the cistern, and let it go through a filter such as a hoghead filled with gravel and pieces of charcoal mixed. The charcoal purifies the water.

The edible artichoke is the French (or Globe) artichoke and the Jerusalem Artichoke. To cook them cut half the stems off the bottom leaves, strip off the withered outer leaves until they begin to feel tender, then soak the artichokes in cold water containing a little vinegar for 30 minutes. Wash well and boil till tender in salted water. Drain and serve hot with drawn butter, French Dressing, Hollandaise Sauce or a white sauce.

"My face was full of small, red pimples and so sore that I could hardly stand to shave. My scalp was covered with dry lumps that would scale off and leave sore eruptions. The eruptions itched and burned so badly that I scratched them, causing them to bleed.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped me, and after using one box of Cuticura Ointment, together with the Cuticura Soap, I was healed." (Signed) C. L. Walker, 717 Zane St., Martins Ferry, Ohio.

AN OLD FRIEND
I met an old friend yesterday,
A comrade from the far-away,
And glad was I his smile to see,
For this is what he brought to me:

The Schoolhouse from the Long Ago,
The boys and girls I used to know.
The little home on Sibley street,
Where all the youngsters used to meet.

The games we played, the things we did,
The secret places where we hid,
The pranks of all our youthful crew,
The punishments we sometimes drew.

A living book, he seemed to me.

Fresh from memory's bindery,
A book whose leaves were edged with gold,
So many merry tales he told.

He walked alone, and yet I swear
A troop of gladsome folk were there,
For back of us he seemed to call
Our lost companions, one and all.

A hundred spirits danced about,
I heard them sing, I heard them shout,
And for an hour 'tis truth I pen
I lived with them, a boy again.

Wo meets on old friend on the way
Meets all the joys of yesterday,
The laughter which he used to know,
And all the charm of Long Ago.

VICTORIOUS YANKS CROWNED WORLD'S SERIES CHAMPIONS

New York, Oct. 16.—"Long Bob" Meusel knocked the championship of the baseball world from the Polo grounds in Harlem over into the Bronx yesterday. The big pennant that has fluttered so proudly for two years on the tall staff at the foot of Coogan's Bluff, will next year kiss the breezes over the gray and green walls of the Yankee stadium, just across the river.

The world's series of 1923 is over, the Yankees of the American league taking the sixth game by a score of 6 to 4, and the series by four games to 2. It is the first time since the American league came to New York, 20 years ago, that its club has won the big title.

The Meusel hit came in the eighth inning, after the mighty Ruth had fanned with furious sweeps for the second out, with the bases full and the Yankees a run behind. The Giants went into the inning three runs ahead, and with Arthur Nehf, the great left-hander of the McGraw forces, pitching remarkable ball. The Yankees had but two hits of Nehf as the eighth opened, then Nehf suddenly lost control.

With one out in the fatal eighth, Schang and Scott singled. Hoffman, batting for Pennock, walked, filling the bases. Haines ran for Hoffman. Bush, batting for Witt, walked, forcing Schang in. Nehf was taken out of the box. Ryan relieved him. Johnson ran for Bush. Dugan walked, forcing in Scott. Ruth fanned. Meusel singled to center, scoring Haines and Johnson. Dugan scored and Meusel went to third when Cunningham threw the ball to the stands. Five runs, and they sealed the fate of the Giants. Babe Ruth hit a home run in the first inning.

The Giants scored one in the first on singles by Groh, Frisch and Young. They added another in the fourth on hits by Frisch and Cunningham. In the fifth Snyder poled a homer into the left field stands. McGraw's men made their final tally in the sixth on Frisch's triple and Meusel's single.

A lot of marvelous fielding and some good hitting by Frankie Frisch, "the Fordham Flash," was submerged by the ultimate result. It was perhaps the greatest individual exhibition of the entire series.

GREENVILLE HIGH WILL AMUSE XENIA ELEVEN THIS WEEK

Three defeats to the bad, the Central High football team will go to Greenville Friday afternoon for another bitter session on the gridiron.

Last fall, a team representing Central High cracked the Greenville warriors for a 12 to 0 victory in an early season game. The victory, looking from a 1923 standpoint, was just like waving a red flag at a bull.

With memories of his defeat lingering in their sub-conscious minds, the Greenville High team is going to be permitted to take a fall out of Coach Earl Burgner's much battered grididers when they get the Xenia pastimers in the Greenville yard Friday afternoon.

In fact, from all accounts, it looks as if only one thing will prevent the Xenia team from sustaining a fourth defeat. That one thing is to play real football Friday afternoon. Fans who have watched the progress of the blue and white eleven this fall, have been much disappointed.

Likely looking material turned out for the initial practices. The fans did not expect the team to be a world beater to start the season and accepted the Wilmington defeat philosophically. What the fans had a right to expect, however, was an improvement in the play of the eleven.

It would be far fetched to say the team has not improved at all, for many opening day errors have been remedied. But several weak spots on which Coach Burgner has dwelt with particular stress, have failed to respond to treatment. Practice sessions show these lads doing things in the approved style. When they get in the game they seem to forget all that has been taught them.

The ends, coached to go straight down the field on defensive, and then cut in, either to take the runner if he ventures on the outside, or to turn him in for the tackle and half, have been galloping straight into the center of the line and letting the man carrying the ball run around them. That style of play is simply not being done.

The team seems to have found a center in the person of Bill Horner, the Nick Altrock of football, who made rank comedy out of the West Milton passersback last week. It is never too late to start winning football games unless the season has been declared finished. Fans want the team to come to life against Greenville Friday.

RECORD SUM TAKEN IN DURING WORLD'S SERIES THIS YEAR

The fans paid $1,063,815, a record sum, to see the six games of the world's series.

Sixth Game		Six Games
Attendance	$ 34,172.00	301,430.00
Receipts	139,252.00	1,063,815.00

Club's share	118,364.20	535,460.72

If the Yankees share is equally divided, each individual player will receive $6,278.93, while each Giant player will receive $4,470.

The Tigers and Reds, who finished second in their respective leagues, will divide $54,417.46 while the Indians and Pirates, who finished third will divide $36,278.30.

SARAZEN NEARLY BREAKS HAMILTON GOLF LINKS RECORD

Playing with Silver Baxter, professional at the Butler County Country Club, Hamilton, and former Xian, Monday, Gene Sarazen, national golf champ, came within one stroke of breaking the course record.

Failure to sink an eight-foot putt that rilled to the edge of the cup kept Sarazen from turning the trick. Sarazen and Baxter were in the first 18 holes of a 36 hole match with Alex Campbell, Cincinnati club professional and Steve Zappe, Ohio open champion when he made the low score.

On the second round in the nine-hole course, Sarazen made a 32 with par at 37, equaling the course record. In the 18 holes played Monday morning Sarazen and Baxter finished five up and four while in the second 18 they finished three up.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

mal success in future games will take them a fair claim for the title. Wooster will meet Case this week and should win handily. Denison also showed good form in defeating Cincinnati and may have to be reckoned with although greeted as a rank outsider in pre-season dope. The Baptists play Akron Saturday and a win is promised.

One of the championship contenders in the Ohio Conference football race will be eliminated at Springfield Saturday when Wittenberg dedicates its new stadium and meets Ohio Wesleyan.

Both are considered fair prey for the state title this year and the defeated team will be sadly eliminated from further competition, it is assured.

While Wesleyan showed good form against Ohio State in the opening encounter the Methodists lost some of their prestige by their showing against Ohio Northern last week.

Northern came within an ace of tying Wesleyan and the fact that the Ada school has not been considered of championship calibre makes the score the more humiliating for Coach Gauthier's outfit.

Coach Earl Burgner, of Central High School, a former Wittenberg star, says Wesleyan as a "million dollar line". Since he uttered that historic remark, the Methodists have gathered in Ted Turner and George State, last year's stars, who have just been voted eligible by the conference.

The addition of the veterans should strengthen the attack of the Methodists and it is anticipated that Wesleyan will hold a slight edge over the Luthers at the close of the stadium festivities next Saturday.

Wooster sprang the big surprise of the Conference to our way of thinking, by defeating Miami University 13 to 0, after the Oxford team was acknowledged a championship contender. The fact that the Presbyterians annually play a light schedule makes the victory the more significant, as normal.

The team seems to have found a center in the person of Bill Horner, the Nick Altrock of football, who made rank comedy out of the West Milton passersback last week. It is never too late to start winning football games unless the season has been declared finished. Fans want the team to come to life against Greenville Friday.

the Athens crew, will take on John Carroll, former St. Ignatius and also known as Cleveland University. The Clevelander boosted their stock by holding Carnegie Tech to a low score.

Western Reserve is also now looming up as a strong bidder for Conference honors after years of lying dormant. A line on the changes of the Cleveland school may be obtained when it meets Ohio Northern at Cleveland Saturday since Northern has already met Wesleyan.

Reserve defeated Muskingum 7 to 0 and while this score had little significance it meant considerable more after the games last week, when it was shown Bill Lange's team had defeated Kenyon 34 to 0.

WHEN MARKET DECLINES TRADERS SHIFT FROM LONG TERM TO SHORT TERM SECURITIES

— SHORT TERM
— LONG TERM
— 5-6 POINT RANGE
— 10-12 POINT RANGE

Short term notes are affected very little by changing price levels because they will be paid off so soon.

Short term notes might well be affected short term bonds. They are notes of corporations, secured or unsecured, which mature in from one to ten years. They are issued in place of long term bonds during times of high interest rates because a corporation doesn't want to pay a high rate any longer than it has to.

Long term bonds are subject to wider fluctuations in price over a period of years than short term notes.

The reason for this is apparent. These notes will be paid off at par within a few years, so naturally the market price will stay close to par.

A high grade listed bond might fluctuate 12 or 14 points during an ordinary business cycle, while the range on short term notes would be only 5 to 6 points.

Consequently when traders expect a decline in the market they shift into short term securities.

DIMMING DEVICE IS ATTRACTING INTEREST

A device to permit the driver of a motor vehicle to switch his head lights on and off without the danger occurring from taking his hands from the wheel, is attracting interest of Greene County motorists.

Such a device is being offered motorists here in the Presto-Dimmer, a new invention, which operates from a button on the wheel and can be used by the driver without removing his hands from the wheel and his eyes from the road. The invention is designed to eliminate the danger of constantly dividing his attention with a dimmer button on the dash.

A WIFE'S STORY

By Jane Phelps

had met the others, all but one of the girls, a delicate, aristocratic looking girl Madge Dearing, who seemed to want to keep Clem waiting upon her.

The day passed off delightfully. They played tennis in the morning, went in swimming before luncheon, and in the afternoon went on the water.

"Oh, Mother! I'm so glad you're up. I want to talk to you," she said in an eager voice as she took off her hat.

"May I ask some of the boys and girls down for the weekend? Dad won't be home, and if Laura and I sleep in your room, we'll have places for them all."

"I think we might arrange it. How many do you want to ask?" I replied making mental note of our accommodations.

"Only three boys and two girls. That will make six of us. The girls can have our room, the boys the guest room. We can put in a couch or the third one can sleep in Dad's dressing room. We can go out in the boat, play tennis and have a really nice time. And I'm in debt to them all."

"We can manage that number very nicely," I returned. It would be a relief to have the house full of young folks, keep me from thinking of Logan, what he has said and done. Then, too, I was glad to give Joan pleasure, innocent pleasure. I was very anxious over her. She was so variable, full of life at times, then down in the depths. This moodiness had been very apparent of late and her spells of depression lasted longer. So, as late as it was, I discussed what we would do to entertain her young guests even the food we would give them. Joan was all animation and when we finally parted she threw her arms around my neck and said:

"No bad girl ever had such a good mother."

Her unwanted caress brought the tears to my eyes. Like her father, Joan was chary about showing affection. And I lay long awake planning how I could make her weekend party a real success.

Saturday morning brought her five guests, Clem Sanders one of them. I had noted with disquietude that Joan seemed quiet of the day previous had left her. But I was so busy I had no time to look for the cause. After they came in from their row on the water they dawdled about, playing all the new records, and chatting together after dinner time. It was a warm night and after dinner they went out into the yard. I wanted to speak to Joan and, after a bit, went in search of her. I saw her disappear behind the summer house, where someone was sitting and following. As I passed the little vine covered house I heard Joan's name spoken, and recognized the voice as Madge Dearing's.

"Don't be a goose, Madge. You know well enough I'm not serious with Joan. No fellow could be."

I was about to move away but Clem's last words halted me. I despised a listener but felt that I had the right to know what was said of Joan.

"Everyone thinks you are going to marry her," Madge said in a petulant tone.

"Marry a girl who drinks, and whose father is a common bootlegger? I guess not!"

I wanted to cry out, to force the boy to retract the words he had uttered, but was unable to move or speak. After a moment I saw Joan again. She was walking away from the summer house. Had she too heard?

LAW ENFORCEMENT

Prohibition Question Now
Expected to Be Cast
Into Campaign

Washington, Oct. 16.—The conference of state governors which President Coolidge has called to meet at the White House this week end has been lifted out of the ruck of common-place things and elevated to a point where it now bids fair to become the most outstanding political event of the current season—with an important bearing on next year's presidential campaign.

Governor Gifford Pinchot's outspoken challenge to President Coolidge to take personal command of prohibition enforcement and the quick rebuke administered to the Pennsylvania governor by such a prominent Republican as Henry J. Allen of Kansas made this certain today.

Instead of being a quiet week-end, partisan party at the White House, featuring lofty platitudes about the beauties of law enforcement and the sacredness of the constitution, the meeting now promises to vie some classing and fireworks that will make political history.

President Coolidge does not intend, his friends said, today, to accept in "meekness and humility" the criticism of his administration voiced by Governor Pinchot. He plans to reply vigorously to Mr. Pinchot, and serve notice not only to Pennsylvania but to others as well that enforcement of laws in this country is as much up to state and local authorities as it is to the federal government.

The president already is working on his speech. He talked it over with some of his cabinet members today, and the cabinet itself devoted some discussion to the approaching conference.

Washington, Oct. 16.—There was an air of resentment at the white house over the effort of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania to hold President Coolidge responsible for allowing dry law laxity.

Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas, a white house luncheon guest, said that Pinchot was trying to make the president do what he had been unable to do in Philadelphia. He added: "If I were governor and a city defied my orders to close up saloons, they would wake up to the sound of reveille and retire to the tune of taps."

The president let it be known that there would be no departure from his plan to ask for state co-operation instead of taking up the burden of enforcement personally. When he received the delegates to the citizenship convention he told them that he had called a conference of governors for Oct. 20 to deal with the situation they are discussing.

Former Governor Allen scored Pinchot for what he termed "passing the buck" to President Coolidge in the matter of dry law enforcement. The address was made before the conference on citizenship council of Christ churches.

"There is some confusion of thought as to whose duty it is to enforce the dry law," Allen declared.

"There is a little touch of that game we learned so well during the war of passing the buck."

For the most part, however, the earnest minded men and women who have come here with their anxieties for the law heavy upon their hearts are confused as to whether it is the duty of the federal government or the state to enforce the Volstead act.

"I believe that responsibility so far as the government is concerned should be taken out of the treasury department, or prohibition bureau, and placed with the department of justice."

"I believe in spite of what has been said that the prohibition people should keep in mind the fact it is the duty of the police powers in the respective states to enforce prohibition within those states. Good government must begin at home. Federal power should be the last recourse of bad government in a bad community."

In reference to the situation in Pennsylvania, cited by Governor Pinchot in calling upon President Coolidge to personally direct a dry drive, he declared that Pinchot should first exhaust every power at his command before calling on the United States.

FIVE TRAPPED IN BIG FOREST FIRE ARE DEAD

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 16.—Five men are believed dead today, trapped in the forest fires which have flared again through the upper peninsula.

The men all were employees of the Independence Lumber Company in the Big Bay district, 25 miles northwest of here, where the fires, fanned by high winds, have assumed menacing proportions.

A group of six lumber men one of many fire fighting units had been back firing at a railroad construction camp and were attempting to reach a logging camp for additional equipment. Five of them fell in the path of the advancing fire, said the sixth man, apparently was the only survivor.

ROCKING CHAIR IS CAUSE OF DEATH

Canton, O., Oct. 16.—Clarence W. Bechtel, 25 is dead here today as the result of a quarrel over a rocking chair which he gave Mrs. Anna R. Breckler, 48, as a Christmas gift last year.

Bechtel, according to police, came home last night and engaged in a quarrel with his landlady, when Mrs. Breckler is alleged to have ordered him from her home. As he was leaving, he is said to have made some nasty remarks regarding her ingratitude and Mrs. Breckler pursued him with a gun.

They came to grips on the porch. Three shots were fired from the gun one entering Bechtel's body just below the heart, one passing through the woman's hand and the third went wild. Bechtel died on the way to the hospital. Mrs. Breckler is under arrest charged with murder.

WOOD TO LECTURE AGAINST PHILIPPINE INDEPENDENCE

Washington, Oct. 16.—Major General Leonard Wood will make a lecture tour of the United States speaking against the independence of the Philippine Islands, if present plans which are being considered by administrator officials, are carried through, it was learned today.

It is believed that a series of lectures by General Wood would be the best possible method of combatting the political campaign being conducted by Manuel Quezon and other Filipino politicians for the independence of the Philippines. The administration is anxious to set before the American public, certain facts about the islands which are not generally known and which tend to show that the Filipinos are not yet ready for independence.

For instance the supporters of the Wood regime, contend that during the past year, the Philippines enjoyed greater prosperity than ever before.

They point out that through the flotation of a 4½ per cent loan in the United States that peso is now of equal value with the American dollar while two years ago Philippine currency was at a sixteen per cent discount. Furthermore they declare that the Philippines received approximately 35 more for sugar last year than other persons who had similar transactions with this government while they derived a corresponding benefit, through the export to this country of cigars and tobacco.

General Wood's supporters also contend that given independence, the Philippine government would soon be enmeshed in debt to Japan which would finally result in serious complications.

CARMY THOMSON

Columbus, Oct. 16.—Four major reasons why Colonel Carmy A. Thompson, Cleveland, defeated Republican nominee for governor last year, will be a candidate again in 1924, were given today by Harry Blair, Columbus, Thompson's publicity agent in the last campaign.

While Colonel Thompson has not said that he will, or will not, be a candidate, Blair's statement is generally accepted as putting Thompson squarely in the running.

INDICTMENT ATTACKED

Columbus, Oct. 16.—William G. Benham and Dwight Harrison, president and vice president of the R. L. Dollings company of Ohio, attacked the first of the four indictments facing them here through motions to quash. The indictments were returned after a grand jury investigation of the sale of stock in Dollings subsidiaries. The motion will be argued Oct. 23.

"There is some confusion of thought as to whose duty it is to enforce the dry law," Allen declared.

"There is a little touch of that game we learned so well during the war of passing the buck."

For the most part, however, the earnest minded men and women who have come here with their anxieties for the law heavy upon their hearts are confused as to whether it is the duty of the federal government or the state to enforce the Volstead act.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 16.—The crest of the North Canadian river's worst flood was believed to be past at nine o'clock this morning, after almost the entire citizenship of Oklahoma City had worked frantically from midnight to daylight sandbagging stores against possible inundation.

The river, according to the United States Weather Bureau, began receding shortly before nine o'clock and the city dam holding back billions of barrels of flood water, withstood the test.

Very few citizens slept during the night. Looting was reported in certain parts of the flood area this morning.

Watchers will be barred from the flooded area. Persons whose homes are within the flood district, will be requested to obtain permission from the police before attempting to return to their home.

Every effort will be made to minimize the damage done, by the flood.

Two thirds of the city was housing the other third today while the waters of the North Canadian river, on the worst rampage in history, had filled the lowland sections and swirled houses and property before it. The city reservoir had broken in one place adding danger even to the business section of the city.

National guard troops were on duty in addition to hundreds of special police and orders were to shoot to kill if looting started.

Bread and coffee lines were established at the Hucks Hotel and other downtown places and all clubs, churches and organizations threw doors open to the refugees flocking in from the low sections.

The crest of the flood wave, never before more than 17 feet was soaring at 25 feet at the dam with a prospect of even higher during the day.

Pandemonium broke loose shortly after midnight when sirens began blowing as a pre-arranged signals, warning that the reservoir had broken. Fifteen thousand residents rushed to high ground.

Steel, earth, stone—nothing could withstand the onrush of the waters. The huge reservoir dam gave away, behind which billions of barrels of water rushed onto the Santa Fe railroad fill, through the southern part of the city, backing the water up into lower districts. It is feared that if the entire dam goes out much more territory will be inundated.

RIVAL MANAGERS ISSUE STATEMENTS

New York, Oct. 16.—Miller Huggins, manager of the world champion New York Yankees, said: "The Giants had some tough breaks in the eighth inning, I know, but in the pinch my boys came through wonderfully, just as I expected them to do. Wally Schang and Everett Scott started it, and Bob Meusel finished it. The Giants are still one up on us and I hope we even it up next year. It was a great series. I think the greatest that ever was played. I knew my team would come through. I'm proud of them all."

John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, world champions in 1905, 1921 and 1922, made the following statement: "I have no alibis. We beat them twice, in 1921 and 1922. Maybe they were entitled to win. I congratulate them and I hope we will meet again next year. It will be different story if we do. I want to say one thing to clear up something. Babe Ruth walked eight times during the series, more than any other man, it is true, but not once did I order any pitcher of mine to pass him. But he's a dangerous batter. There's no getting away from that."

BY SIDNEY THATCHER

Lloyd George has been commended as being more nearly American than any European political figure. The former British premier demonstrated this at close range Sunday, when he rebelled against church attendance when he had planned a morning of golf.

"The only part that most people ever had in their nation is that by loving it they helped make a national spirit. This that they loved was not an abstraction, a theory of government. It was a person. It was a king, or some one in his family. If he were human and friendly, they loved him.

We watched an old woman this summer look at the picture of President Harding. She was not born here. She was of a time and of a country where the rulers were to be respected and honored and loved. That had been her only part in the government. But she came over here and she was lost. It was not the thing to do here. The first thing she learned was that the ruler is not one to be loved; that is her servant to be so treated an considered. He was to be opposed and heckled and talked about critically by every good citizen. But now that the ruler was dead, people were doing something that she could have a part in; they were bringing out the things of human interest about him which she could understand."—Rev. John Malick, First Unitarian Congregational Church Cincinnati.

DROP JAMESTOWN HALLOWE'EN PARTY

The annual Hallowe'en celebration in Jamestown will be foregone this year.

A committee of business men, meeting with a committee selected to solicit funds for the project, reached this decision, Monday night.

Divided interests and lack of financial assistance resulted in dropping plans for this year's affair, it is said.

THE PUBLIC MIND.

The prosperity of Our Country and the success and value of all business industries and enterprises depend largely on the attitude of the public.

"The public mind," is made up in the aggregate of every shade of thought from placid conservatism to the rankest forms of ultra-socialism preached on the street corners.

Any one who will make a trip across the continent or travel from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico must become an optimist and gain increased faith in the integrity and fair mindedness of the people at large.

The magnitude and variety of business interests and all forms of production, from agriculture and lumbering to manufacturing, banking, public utilities and transportation, mining and shipping working in open private competition and yet under control of government, are a revelation of genius to make an intelligent person proud ad patriotic,

It must not be forgotten that back of all this great manifestation of power, intelligence, harmony and stability is the "public mind," the consciousness of the commonwealth founded on well-informed, clear-thinking citizenship, that is not easily led astray by vicious leaders or confused sophistries. The public mind is the greatest national asset.

THE WORLD OUR NEIGHBORHOOD.

The world's not getting worse, it's getting smaller. Our fathers never heard of the doings going on today for the simple reason that they seldom heard of happenings beyond their country. To be true, the newspapers are filled with things that a former generation never thought of. The reason is obvious; means of communication abound today that were unknown a few generations ago. The wires of the great dailies gather the events of two continents and place these before us as casually as the morning coffee.

The disquieting wave of wickedness and catastrophe is nothing more than a widening of our neighborhood. Warring armies fought each other at New Orleans a century ago, although two weeks before, peace had been declared. Today New Orleans and Sidney, Australia, are on the same wave length, so to speak. A President's death in San Francisco is known to New Yorkers simultaneously.

So the mind of the news reader shifts with his eye from events in Los Angeles to Denver, to Portland, to Miami in less time than it takes to tell it. Europe, Asia, Africa and the antipodes are as near in the news as our suburbs.

When this worldwide territory of the news-gathering agencies is considered, the instances of bad news are actually few. If the world, with its teeming millions is our neighborhood today, it is not such a bad world after all. Remember, the best news of all is seldom, if ever reported.

Today's Talk

WHEN THE LEAVES ARE OFF THE TREES

Longfellow once said that he liked the trees best when the leaves were off.

Stately and beautiful as the trees are with their coverings of green, and mystic as the flutterings and whisperings of their leaves, still there is a grandeur and nobleness about their bare, reaching boughs that causes the very soul to weaken.

There is a feeling of reverence that comes over one as these servants of nature stand their life, rooted into the very heart of the earth.

We all arrive at a time in our lives when the trappings and the coverings, the decorations and the ornaments take second place to the sound worth and fundamentals of character itself.

The world is able to look into our bare thoughts and actions as it looks upon stripped trees and see there the gold of our desires, the basic truths of our natures, the standards on which we have tried to build.

The health and vigor of the tree is not always expressed by its beautiful foliage, but by the soundness of its trunk.

Important as are clothes to appearance, they are mere coverings after all. It's the heart and the head and the bearing of the man in all events that counts.

When the leaves are off the tree, we think of all that that tree has given of itself during the months of sunshine and warmth.

And if we are to judge people we must catch their spirit, not judge their covering, though it may be very attractive, expensive and of the latest style.

Let us always be glad to stand for what we are, with no apologies.

Twenty: "I can afford only a few new clothes this Winter. What would you advise me to get? I want to look a good heavy coat. I want to look stylish.

Answer: A famous designer of clothing has said: "A fur neckpiece, a string of beads and silk stockings are the secret of a stylish appearance." And I believe he's right! Everybody is now wearing a knotted pleated skirt and a jacquette blouse. My favorite combination is a dark blue wool-crepe skirt with a blue silk-crepe overblouse which has a touch of dark red or green in it—perhaps shot with a fine gold thread.

O. W.: "Is it good form to serve layer cake for breakfast? When, if ever, is it permissible to use paper napkins for home dinners? Of what benefit is charcoal to cistern water when kept in the water continually? Kindly give information about the edible artichoke and the way to cook it."

Answer: No, it is not good form to serve layer cake at breakfast. Paper napkins are convenient to use for picnics or at a time of upheaval in the home—such as when moving, when housecleaning or when there is illness. But people do not often use them regularly even for home meals. Japanese crepes napkins (blue and white) are used by many housewives because they are the easiest to launder—simply requiring washing, and no ironing.

As to the cistern charcoal, the most approved method today is the following: To keep rain water in good condition, first have a cut-off in the pipe so that the first fall of rain, for about half an hour, may be prevented from going into the cistern and carrying with it the dust from the roof; after the half hour, open the passageway so that the rain may go from the roof into the cistern, and let it go through a filter such as a hoghead filled with gravel and pieces of charcoal, mixed. The charcoal purifies the water.

The edible artichoke is the French (or Globe) artichoke and the Jerusalem Artichoke. To cook them cut half the stems off the bottom leaves, strip off the withered outer leaves, until they begin to feel tender, then soak the artichokes in cold water containing a little vinegar for 30

New York, Oct. 16.—"Long Bob" Meusel knocked the championship of the baseball world from the Polo grounds in Harlem over into the Bronx yesterday. The big pennant that has fluttered so proudly for two years on the tall staff at the foot of Coogan's Bluff, will next year kiss the breezes over the gray and green walls of the Yankee stadium, just across the river.

The world's series of 1923 is over, the Yankees of the American league taking the sixth game by a score of 6 to 4, and the series by four games to 2. It is the first time since the American league came to New York, 20 years ago, that its club has won the big title.

The Meusel hit came in the eighth inning, after the mighty Ruth had fanned with furious sweeps for the second out, with the bases full and the Yankees a run behind. The Giants went into the inning three runs ahead, and with Arthur Nehf, the great left-hander of the McGraw forces, pitching remarkable ball. The Yankees had but two hits off Nehf as the eighth opened, then Nehf suddenly lost control.

With one out in the fatal eighth, Schang and Scott singled. Hoffman, batting for Pennock, walked, filling the bases. Haines ran for Hoffman. Bush, batting for Witt, walked, forcing Schang on. Nehf was taken out of the box. Ryan relieved him. Johnson ran for Bush. Dugan walked, forcing in Scott. Ruth fanned. Meusel singled to center, scoring Haines and Johnson. Dugan scored and Meusel went to third when Cunningham threw the ball to the stands. Five runs, and they sealed the fate of the Giants. Babe Ruth hit a home run in the first inning.

The Giants scored one in the first on singles by Groh, Frisch and Young. They added another in the fourth on hits by Frisch and Cunningham. In the fifth Snyder poled a homer into the left field stands. McGraw's men made their final tally in the sixth on Frisch's triple and Meusel's single.

A lot of marvelous fielding and some good hitting by Frankie Frisch, "the Fordham Flash," was submerged by the ultimate result. It was perhaps the greatest individual exhibition of the entire series.

MR. SAMUEL C. OLDHAM,
REYNOLDSBURG, OHIO.

Mr. Samuel C. Oldham, a well-known farmer of Reynoldsburg, Ohio, tells an interesting story of his experience with Kad-i-oh. Mr. Oldham, who owns his own farm, has been running it for 32 years. He is a man of sterling character and is highly esteemed by his friends and neighbors. His statement, therefore, will carry a great deal of weight by all who know him. He says: "I am feeling much better today than I have felt for the past five years, at which time I was operated on at Grant Hospital for appendicitis, at that time my condition was very critical as peritonitis set in and almost carried me off. Since the time I recovered from this operation, I never felt right as my stomach was continually out of order and I was always more or less constipated. After eating my food fermented and caused me to have pains around my heart; I was in a weak and nervous condition and although I tried a number of remedies and took the best possible care of myself, I failed to get better. A short while back I heard so many favorable reports about Kad-i-oh that I started taking it and am happy to say that it has helped me wonderfully. I have no further pains with indigestion and I am a great deal stronger. I have five children in my family and they are all convinced that there is no better remedy in the world than Kad-i-oh, as they know what it has done for me.

"You are at liberty to publish this testimonial as I want others to know what a fine remedy Kad-i-oh really is."

Kad-i-oh can be had in Xenia at Sayre & Hemphill's Drug Store. adv.

GREENVILLE HIGH WILL AMUSE XENIA ELEVEN THIS WEEK

Grid-Dust

By Ray Higgins

Three defeats to the bad, the Central High football team will go to Greenville Friday afternoon for another bitter session on the gridiron.

Last fall, a team representing Central High cracked the Greenville warriors for a 12 to 0 victory in an early season game. The victory, looking from a 1923 standpoint, was just like waving a red flag at a bull.

With memories of his defeat lingering in their sub-conscious minds, the Greenville High team is going to be permitted to take a fall out of Coach Earl Burgner's much battered gridiron when they get the Xenia pastimers in the Greenville yard Friday afternoon.

In fact, from all accounts, it looks as if only one thing will prevent the Xenia team from sustaining a fourth defeat. That one thing is to play real football Friday afternoon. Fans who have watched the progress of the blue and white eleven this fall, have been much disappointed.

Likely looking material turned out for the initial practices. The fans did not expect the team to be a world beater to start the season and accepted the Wilmington defeat philosophically. What the fans had a right to expect, however, was an improvement in the play of the eleven.

It would be far fetched to say the team has not improved at all, for many opening day errors have been remedied. But several weak spots on which Coach Burgner has dwelt with particular stress, have failed to respond to treatment. Practice sessions show these lads doing things in the approved style. When they get in the game they seem to forget all that has been taught them.

The ends, coached to go straight down the field on defensive, and then cut in, either to take the runner if he ventures on the outside, or to turn him in for the tackle and half, have been galloping straight into the center of the line and letting the man carrying the ball run around them. That style of play is simply not being done.

The team seems to have found a center in the person of Bill Horner, the Nick Altrock of football, who made rank comedy out of the West Milton passback last week. It is never too late to start winning football games unless the season has been declared finished. Fans want the team to come to life against Greenville Friday.

RECORD SUM TAKEN IN DURING WORLD'S SERIES THIS YEAR

The fans paid $1,063,815, record sum, to see the six games of the world's series.

If the Yankees share is equally divided, each individual player will receive $6,278.93, while each Giant player will receive $4,470.

SARAZEN NEARLY BREAKS HAMILTON GOLF LINKS RECORD

Playing with Silver Baxter, professional at the Butler County Country Club, Hamilton, and former Xian, Monday, Gene Sarazen, national golf champ, came within one stroke of breaking the course record.

Failure to sink an eight-foot putt that rolled to the edge of the cup kept Sarazen from turning the trick. Sarazen and Baxter were in the first 18 holes of a 36 hole match with Alex Campbell, Cincinnati club professional and Steve Zappe, Ohio open champion when he made the low score.

On the second round in the nine-hole course, Sarazen made a 32 with par at 27, equaling the course record. In the 18 holes played Monday morning Sarazen and Baxter finished five up and four while in the second 18 they finished three up.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little green-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

Father, as much as anyone needs SCOTT'S EMULSION small success in future games would give them a fair claim for the title.

Wooster will meet Case this week and should win handily. Denison also showed good form in defeating Cincinnati and may have to be reckoned with although greeted as a rank outsider in pre-season dope. The Baptists play Akron Saturday and a win is promised.

Ohio University, defeated by St. Xavier and Cincinnati, defeated by Denison, will play a consolation match at Cincinnati. St. X. reckoned with strongly because of the win over the Athens crew, will take on John Carroll, former St. Ignatius and also known as Cleveland University. The Clevelanders boosted their stock by holding Carnegie Tech to a low score.

Western Reserve is also now looming up as a strong bidder for Conference honors after years of lying dormant. A line on the changes of the Cleveland school may be obtained when meets Ohio Northern at Cleveland Saturday since Northern has already met Wesleyan.

Reserve defeated Muskingum 7 to 0 and while this score had little significance it meant considerable more after the games last week, when it was shown Bill Lange's team had defeated Kenyon 34 to 0.

WHEN MARKET DECLINES TRADERS SHIFT FROM LONG TERM TO SHORT TERM SECURITIES

5-6 POINT RANGE
---> 10-12 POINT RANGE

DIMMING DEVICE IS ATTRACTING INTEREST

A device to permit the driver of a motor vehicle to switch his head lights on and off without the danger occurring from taking his hands from the wheel, is attracting interest of Greene County motorists.

Such a device is being offered motorists here in the Presto-Dimmer, a new invention, which operates from a button on the wheel and can be used by the driver without removing his hands from the wheel and his eyes from the road. The invention is designed to eliminate the danger of constantly dividing his attention with a dimmer button on the dash.

Long term bonds are subject to wider fluctuations in price over a period of years than short term notes.

The reason for this is apparent. These notes will be paid off at par within a few years, so naturally the market price will stay close to par.

A high grade listed bond might fluctuate 12 or 14 points during an ordinary business cycle, while the range on short term notes would be only 5 to 6 points.

Consequently when traders expect a decline in the market they shift into short term securities.

A WIFE'S STORY

By Jane Phelps

Chapter 11

It was 12 o'clock when Joan came in. I had no idea it was so late, and started to reprimand her, but the sight of her glowing face, her intent eyes fixed upon me halted the words on my lips.

"Oh, Mother! I'm so glad you're up. I want to talk to you," she said in an eager voice as she took off her hat. "May I ask some of the boys and girls down for the weekend? Dad won't be home, and if Laura and I sleep in your room, we'll have places for them all."

"I think we might arrange it. How many do you want to ask?" I replied making mental note of our accommodations.

"Only three boys and two girls. That will make six of us. The girls can have our room, the boys the guest room. We can put in a couch or the third one can sleep in Dad's dressing room. We can go out in the boat, play tennis and have a really nice time. And I'm in debt to them all."

"We can manage that number very nicely," I returned. It would be a relief to have the house full of young folks, keep me from thinking of Logan, what he has said and done. Then, too, I was glad to give Joan pleasure, innocent pleasure. I was very anxious over her. She was so variable, full of life at times, then down in the depths. This moodiness had been very apparent of late and her spells of depression lasted longer. So late as it was, I discussed what we would do to entertain her young guests even the food we would give them. Joan was all animation and when we finally parted she threw her arms around my neck and said:

"No bad girl ever had such a good mother."

Her unwanted caress brought the tears to my eyes. Like her father, Joan was chary about showing affection. And I lay long awake planning how I could make her weekend party a real success.

Saturday morning brought her five guests, Clem Sanders one of them. I had met the others, all but one of the girls, a delicate, aristocratic looking girl Madge Dearing, who seemed to want to keep Clem waiting upon her.

The day passed off delightfully. They played tennis in the morning, went in swimming before luncheon, and in the afternoon went on the water; after a late dinner they danced. I had invited some young friends of Laura's in so that she might not be wholly left out. I was so busy that, save for a passing moment, all Dave Logan had said or implied was forced from my mind. I had determined Joan's party should be a success if I could make it so.

Sunday morning dawned bright and beautiful. The young people arose late, and after breakfast wandered about either singly or in groups until time to take their swim. A light luncheon, then they again went out for a row, while Laura and I, assisted by my maid, prepared the dinner, and tidied up the house.

I had noted with disquietude that

Joan seemed quiet that her gayety of the day previous had left her. But I was so busy I had no time to look for the cause. After they came in from their row on the water they dawdled, about, playing all the new records, and chatting together until dinner time. It was a warm night and after dinner they went out into the yard. I wanted to speak to Joan and, after a bit, went in search of her. I saw her disappear behind the summer house, where someone was sitting and followed. As I passed the little vine covered house I heard Joan's name spoken, and recognized the voice as Madge Dearing's.

"Don't be a goose, Madge. You know well enough I'm not serious."

"I was about to move away but Clem's last words halted me. I despised a listener but felt that I had the right to know who was said of Joan.

"Everyone thinks you are going to marry her," Madge said in a petulant tone.

"Marry a girl who drinks, and whose father is a common bootlegger? I guess not!"

I wanted to cry out, to force the boy to retract the words he had uttered, but was unable to move or speak. After a moment I saw Joan again. She was walking away from the summer house. Had she too heard?

The Pride of Ownership

in an older home made new is oftentimes greater than in one of more recent construction.

So charming—and so practical have been the appointments incorporated into the plans of the present-day home, that without them, one feels the lack of convenience and refinement of an attractive interior.

Practical make the modernizing of an old home. Wallboards so easy—and the cost of such an improvement is surprisingly moderate.

Oak over the old ones seem magic in the charming interior they tend to create. No other feature lends so much to the attractiveness of a home—nor increases the property value to so great an extent. Costly? not at all. Tell us the size of your rooms and we will quote you the cost of the flooring required.
